Whistleblower Retaliation, Judicial Conflicts, and a €50bn Fraud — Ireland Needs Answers

As we enter the Christmas–New Year period, we extend our thanks to the journalists, advocates, public representatives and whistleblowers who have spoken up on behalf of victims of banking fraud, unlawful foreclosures and those heavily retaliated against for telling the truth.

This season, while many prepare for a break, thousands of Irish families face a very different reality: they are facing repossession proceedings based on heavily redacted documents, defective evidence often by entities with no standing and before certain conflicted judges - all permitted within the Irish court system.

Why? And why now?

To help the public understand the interlocking failures behind Ireland's repossession crisis, we have added a new Frequently Asked Questions section summarising the key patterns of fraud, cover-up, and regulatory failure back to the Irish Banking Inquiry:

A Growing Body of Evidence Points to Systemic Fraud and a Coordinated Cover-Up

The more evidence that comes into the public domain, the clearer the picture becomes:

- Bank Confidential's forensic report, presented in the Palace of Westminster on 13 November 2025, exposed hidden credit lines and concealed losses to SMEs now estimated to be a minimum of €50 billion, representing the largest concealed banking fraud ever identified in Europe.

- Financial Times Adviser has publicly confirmed that redress on this scale — €50 billion — is now unavoidable for businesses and borrowers gravely affected by these undisclosed credit structures.

- Public commentary from members of the Dáil, including one powerful speech in particular on 24 November 2025, has now been viewed almost 500,000 times on one X account — yet remains unreported inside Ireland.

Key Questions Now Require Immediate Public Answers

1. Will the Oireachtas Finance Committee accept the written offer from BankConfidential and its expert forensic team, including Ms Lorraine Morris, to appear before their members to present their evidence?

2. Why are Irish courts continuing to process repossession cases where borrowers have been unlawfully engineered into default?
3. Why are Irish courts continuing to process repossession cases with incomplete chains of title, questionable lender authority, heavily redacted documents and apparent judicial conflicts?

These issues strike at the heart of public trust, democratic accountability and the rule of law.

A New Year's Wish for Ireland – as 2026 approaches, our hope is simple:

That no more Irish families lose their homes due to failures of regulation, failures of transparency and failures of justice.

We extend our warmest wishes for a safe and peaceful New Year — and reaffirm our commitment to exposing the truth so that this crisis cannot continue unchecked.
